My name is Chrispinus Juma Wanyonyi. I was born on 1st April 2005. My father's name is Mark Juma Khaweli while my mother's name is Dorcus Machuma Juma. We are six children in our family and I'm the third born. Both of my parents are alive, jobless but they do small scale farming in order to raise some money to take care of the family. Since I began my studies in Early Childhood Education, I have really struggled because I was being sent home to bring school fees and because it was difficult for my parents to raise it for us, I used to stay home.

I took a step-in seeking jobs in people's shambas (gardens) so that I could raise some money to take to school and this enabled me to at least stay in school two days a week and study. It has been my major challenge despite the encouragement I get from my parents to work extra hard in order to achieve the goals I have in life.

I've had excellent performance right from nursery school because of the commitment of our teachers and the efforts they made to ensure we are do well. Back from school, we used to have a single meal in a day and inadequate clothing. Since last year when I was in grade 7, I developed a health challenge that has been persistent. Whenever I feel better, I really thank God.

My teachers' great commitment in primary school made me like Mathematics, Social Studies and Christian Religious Education as my favorite subjects. They made sure we understood what they taught and corrected us where we didn't do the assignments right. Our English and Kiswahili did the contrary, that's why these two were my least favorite subjects.

I trust in God always. When we sat for our Kenya Certificate for Primary Education, I believed that He'd enable me do well. When the results came back, indeed I had performed to the best of my efforts by scoring 349 marks.

This made live my ambitions of becoming a doctor so that I can treat the sick. I'm grateful for my abilities in playing soccer and acting dramas. My Christian background has been my basic foundation in enabling me overcome the numerous challenges both at home and in school.

I heard about Living Hope High School through one of my uncle's friends as he told me about the supportive nature of the school towards the needy but bright students like me. I was happy when I passed my interview and got accepted to become part of this school. I expect to work hard in my studies with the support of my teachers so that I can achieve my goals.

I look forward to having a wonderful experience here at LHHS. I pray that the Lord shall open my ways!
