

Daniel Simiyu.

My name is Daniel Simiyu. I am the first born of 5 children in my family. I have all parent. I am the first born in my family. My father is a small scale farmer. We have a half an acre of land where he grows his crops.

I went to Testimony academy where I learned from grade 1 to grade 8. I worked very hard while there and managed to score 376 marks out the possible 500. The time before we sat for our national test, I was very worried. I did not know if I was going to proceed to another level after high school. I had struggled to pay my primary education. In fact, they didn't want to give me my primary certificate because I had a huge amount of fees that accrued to clear however I don't need it now until I finish High School. Coming to Living Hope has been the best thing that has happened to me this year. I have never seen such an organized school like this. Prayers here is paramount. Everything starts with prayers and the school makes sure if you don't know how to pray, at the time of your exit after graduating you become the best prayer warrior. I had never gone to Church at home, but after coming here I love the Church more than before. I am so lucky to be here. If I have one blessing, then it's the blessing of me being here at Living Hope. I don't know if it wasn't going to be Living Hope, I don't know how my future will look. Being here has made me develop plans on how my future will look like. Having seen people who have gone before me, I see the future is predictable. My promise to everyone who will touch my life is that, I will not let you down. I will be an example to many people who will come after me. I will work hard and carry the name of the school on a map.

My hobby is playing soccer. At home I have been playing with different clubs and through that I have been getting money to help me out with so many things including registering with my national test.

When I finish school and graduate, I would like to venture into mechanical engineering. I am praying to God to get anyone whom my story will move to help me accomplish my goals. Thank You

With God all things are possible
